ing was deliberately destroyed by well-placed dynamite to knock it down.”

2 -- No evidence of fires in Building 7 for the first 100 minutes after being struck by debris from Tower 1. (Yet fire from the debris is the official explanation for building collapse.)

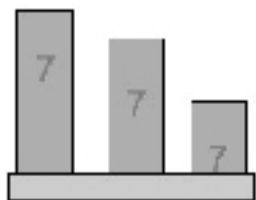

3 -- A free-fall drop of 2.25 sec. is finally officially acknowledged. NIST (National Institute of Standards and Technology) lead investigator explained months earlier that, had there been free fall, there would have been no structural components below.

4 -- No mainstream media covered the building collapse other than that first day, when Dan Rather said on network TV, “For the third time today, it’s reminiscent of those pictures we’ve all seen too much... when a build-

5 -- No mention of the collapse of Building 7 in The 9/11 Commission Report.

6 -- The New York Times characterized as “perhaps the deepest mystery in the investigation,” a FEMA-report appendix about a steel specimen recovered from Building 7, rather like Swiss cheese, a product of extraordinarily high temperatures.

7 -- No mention in the NIST Building 7 Final Report of this mysterious steel specimen.
